STARS OF THE WEEK:

8th March 2024

Bees. Charlotte: Charlotte is an exemplary member of Bee Class. She is kind, conscientious and always trying her best. She has been working so hard in phonics and this is showing with her reading and writing. Keep being a super star, Charlotte!

Butterflies. Layla: Wow Layla, you have had such a fantastic week. You have been trying so hard to listen in all our focus sessions and your writing in phonics and English has blown us away. Keep up the great work Layla, we are really proud of you.

Squirrels. Prim: As part of our World Book Day events, we took on the role of different characters. We discovered what a budding actress, Primrose is. She showed us a loud, clear voice, lots of expression and plenty of determination. We loved seeing how creative you could be and how great you are at performing. What a super week!

Frogs. Harry: For being kind and considerate to all his classmates this week. His attitude and behaviour has been fantastic this week and he has been a great example to everyone. Well done Harry on a super week!

Mice. Kobi: Kobi shone yesterday in his enthusiasm and fantastic vocabulary during our World book day celebrations. Well done, Kobi.

Hedgehogs. AJ: AJ loved looking at the Word Book day book choice. He was brimming with enthusiasm. His vocabulary was a delight. I wish it could be world book day everyday with results like that. Thank you.

Moles. Hollie B. Hollie is the definition of an always child. She is always on her best behaviour, always being an amazing role model, always working hard and always trying to push herself. Hollie has impressed me greatly this week with her writing and her enthusiasm for writing. Well done, Hollie!

Rabbits. Ella-Anne: Ella-Anne has impressed me this week with her English work. She has been really working on her handwriting to earn her special pencil and using all the skills we have learned this week. Keep it up Ella-Anne.

Badgers. Nell: Nell always impresses me with her attitude and behaviour in class. She presents her work beautifully and has made a conscious effort to make her handwriting look neat and presentable. She is beginning to be more confident asking and answering questions in class and sharing her ideas. Keep it up Nell – it will take you far.

"Together, we will make a difference."

Foxes. Caden: Caden has been putting in 100% effort into every lesson recently. He is so enthusiastic with his contributions to lessons, particularly on World Book Day, he always wants to share his written work and has some fantastic ideas. Amazing work Caden!

Kingfishers. Violet: Violet created the most wonderful artistic piece for World Book Day. Using watercolours, Violet carefully and thoughtfully applied her artistic talents. Well done, Violet!

Owls. Lincoln: For working so hard in all our lessons, being really focused and working really well as a team in our science lesson!

Kestrels. Eliza: Eliza has written a fabulous discussion text this week, titled 'Should animals be kept in captivity?' She wrote a well-balanced discussion which included all the objectives we have been working on in lessons: formal language, modal verbs and openers. Well done, Eliza.

Sparrow Hawks. Amelia: Amelia had had an amazing week. She has impressed us so much with her reading and comprehension and also done some great writing. Her focus and effort has been outstanding, and we hope she can keep this up all through her time in Y6.
